THE TIE THAT BINDS

by Dale Jenkins

Just to be honest there are moments when you don't know if something is sad or happy. Or better put it's happy but if you say it is people don't understand. This week has been that way. One of our first folks here died this week. Oh, I'll miss my friend Larry (Dugan), he had a way about him that endured him to all who knew him and he and Sarah have so loved Spring Meadows. So, I'm going to miss the big grin. BUT, I'm happy. I'm happy that he has finished this course and I'm happy that he did it well. I'm happy that my hope is not in here but in heaven where there will be the most spectacular of reunions. In fact, THIS very day reminds me of all the "happy" that I can muster. We remember Jesus' death as commanded each week and His death is remembered because of His resurrection. And every time I remember His death I celebrate His resurrection! So, today I'm happy about Larry because of what I believe about Jesus.

We are so blessed. We are delighted you are here today. If you are a guest, we think you'll love it here. May I suggest you start a streak and be back next week and start a happy habit and be with us every week? You will NEVER regret that. Regardless, I love you and God loves you much more.
