WELCOME - Thank you for being here this morning!

Before we dive into our time of worship and study, I want to make sure you hear this: next Sunday is Spring Fling Sunday, and it is a day you won't want to miss – and more importantly, a day you won't want your neighbors and friends to miss either. We'll have a wonderful morning of worship, a great shared meal, fellowship time, and an egg hunt for our children. But more than the fun and food, this is an opportunity. The people in your life who don't yet have a church home, the neighbor you've been meaning to invite, the coworker who's been on your heart – this is the Sunday. A warm welcome and a shared meal might be exactly the open door someone needs. Don't let the week pass without making that invitation.

As for this morning – we come to a scene from Jesus' life that may leave us a little unsettled. That's okay. Some of the most important things we learn about our Lord come from the passages that challenge our feelings and push us to look more closely. My prayer is that as we study together, we leave not only with a clearer picture of who Jesus is, but with a faith that is deeper and more honest for having wrestled with it. I'm glad you're here. Let's join in together! - Chuck.
