TODAY

There will be a baby shower for Kelli Stockton after worship in the back hallway classroom.

The Emptynester's will have lunch after worship in the kitchen.

Welcome to Spring Meadows!

This has been an extraordinary week for human exploration. On April 1, NASA launched the Artemis II mission — sending four astronauts on a journey around the Moon for the first time since 1972. As I write this, they are making their way back to Earth, having flown within 4,000 miles of the lunar surface and traveled farther from home than any human being in over fifty years. The images they have sent back — of Earth hanging brilliant and small against the darkness, of the Moon's cratered far side lit by the sun — are breathtaking.

And that is exactly the right word: breathtaking. There is something about the vastness of space that takes the air right out of you. The distances are incomprehensible. The beauty is undeniable. And the more we see, the more we are left with a question that no rocket can answer: Who made all of this?

The psalmist already knew. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the sky above proclaims his handiwork" (Psalm 19:1). Every photograph from 250,000 miles out is just more evidence of what Scripture has always told us — that behind the universe stands a Creator of unfathomable power, breathtaking creativity, and perfect design. That is the God we gather to worship this morning.

If you are visiting with us today, we are so glad you are here. Whether someone invited you, you are checking out a new church home, or something simply drew you through the door this morning — welcome. We believe your being here is no accident. We hope you feel at home among us, and we pray that what you experience today points you to the same God who hung the moon in the sky and calls each of us by name. - Chuck
